

Non-executive member of the Office for Budget Responsibility: Candidate pack

Foreword

Dear applicant,

Thank you for your interest in the role of non-executive member of the Office for Budget Responsibility.

The work of the OBR is an important part of the UK's macroeconomic framework, requiring close engagement with HM Treasury and departments that undertake forecasts and analysis on our behalf.

The Budget Responsibility Committee and leadership team greatly value the contributions and perspectives of our non-executive members on managing these relationships, particularly in terms of maintaining our independence from, while also being responsive to the policy-making needs of Government, and ensuring our accountability to Parliament and the public. Our Oversight Board provides guidance on our internal decision-making processes, external engagement and risk management, all of which have been areas where we have drawn particularly heavily on the experience and judgement of our non-executive members over the past year.

We encourage applicants from all backgrounds, irrespective of race, age, gender, marital status, religion and sexual orientation.

Professor David Miles CBE

Tom Josephs

Budget Responsibility Committee

Overview

The OBR was created in 2010 to provide independent and authoritative analysis of the UK's public finances. The Budget Responsibility and National Audit Act 2011 and the Charter for Budget Responsibility set out the legal requirements of the Office, but it has complete discretion over how to deliver its core objectives.

The OBR is currently led by the two members of the Budget Responsibility Committee (BRC), Professor David Miles CBE and Tom Josephs. On 23 June, the Chancellor nominated Prof. Jonathan Haskel CBE as the next Chair of the OBR. If the nomination is approved by the Treasury Committee, he would take up his post later this year and join the BRC.

The Oversight Board consists of the BRC plus two non-executive members of the OBR. The latter two positions have for the past three years been held by Baroness Sarah Hogg, who will chair the Oversight Board until her second term ends on 19 June 2027, and Dame Susan Rice, who chaired the Audit and Risk Committee until the end of her first term in June 2026.

We are seeking to make two appointments, one to immediately replace Dame Susan Rice, whose first term ended on 19 June 2026, and one to replace Baroness Hogg from 19 June 2027.

Non-executive members are nominated by the OBR and appointed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The OBR has around 52 civil service staff, led by the Chief of Staff, Laura Gardiner, and is located in 102 Petty France. It has a budget of around £6.4 million a year.

Role profile

This role requires excellent judgement, undisputed integrity and proven independence, combined with outstanding communication and interpersonal skills. Candidates will be expected to have a deep understanding of the role and functions of the OBR and be able to demonstrate that they have experience of providing strategic leadership in an organisation at a very senior level.

The non-executive members of the OBR do not need to have technical economic or fiscal expertise, and are not appointed in the capacity of technical experts. The successful candidate will bring experience and skills that will complement those of the expert BRC, to contribute to the successful leadership and good governance of the OBR as part of the Oversight Board.

The successful candidate must be able to demonstrate the experience, skills and personal characteristics necessary to perform the roles, including:

- A track record of strategic leadership of an organisation at the highest level in the public sector, business, financial markets, voluntary sector, or academia. Experience relevant to the economic and/or policymaking environment in which the OBR operates would be an advantage.

- Excellent judgement, undisputed integrity and proven independence, with the ability to maintain discretion and engender trust in staff, peers and stakeholders, including Parliament and the Chancellor. This includes the proactive and assiduous management of any actual or potential conflicts of interest.
- A strong awareness of contemporary best practice in the governance of public or private organisations and an ability to apply strategic insights and input for the benefit of the OBR on a range of issues.
- A good understanding of the role and function of the OBR and a full appreciation of the wider environment and policy context in which the OBR operates, and the challenges it faces.
- Outstanding communication and interpersonal skills with an ability to communicate with credibility to all audiences, a proven inclination to work in a constructive way and sufficient authority to command the respect of fellow OBR members.

It would also be desirable to have recent financial experience relevant to managing a small public sector organisation such as the OBR, with this being particularly relevant to contributing to the Audit Committee functions of the OBR.

About the Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR)

We have five main roles:

1 Economic and fiscal forecasting

We produce detailed five-year forecasts for the economy and public finances twice a year. One forecast accompanies the Budget Statement (usually in November) with a second forecast published in the Spring. They incorporate the impact of any tax and spending measures announced in those statements by the Chancellor.

The details of the forecasts are set out in the Economic and fiscal outlook \(EFO\). Our annual Forecast evaluation report \(FER\), published each autumn, examines how they compare to subsequent outturns and draws lessons for future forecasts.

2 Evaluating performance against targets

We use our public finance forecasts to judge the Government's performance against its fiscal targets. In the Budget forecast, we assess whether the Government has a greater than 50 per cent chance of hitting these targets under current policy.

Our Welfare trends report \(WTR\), published once every two years, examines the drivers of welfare spending, including both those elements inside and outside the cap.

3 Sustainability and balance sheet analysis

We assess the long-term sustainability of the public finances: our annual Fiscal risks and sustainability report (FRS) periodically sets out long-term projections, typically following the release of updated population projections from the Office for National Statistics. These long-term projections cover different categories of spending, revenue and financial transactions, and we assess whether they imply a sustainable path for public sector debt.

4 Evaluation of fiscal risks

The annual Fiscal risks and sustainability report (FRS) also periodically provides a comprehensive review of risks from the economy and financial system identified in our fiscal risk register, and includes discussions of specific fiscal risks. In addition to producing central forecasts and projections for the public finances, the EFO and the FRS discuss the risks to those forecasts and projections (both upside and downside).

5 Scrutinising tax and welfare policy costing

We scrutinise the Government's costing of individual tax and welfare spending measures at each Budget. The Government provides us with draft costings in the run-up to each statement and we subject these to detailed scrutiny and challenge.

We then state in each EFO whether we endorse the costings that the Government finally publishes as reasonable central estimates and whether we have used them in our forecasts. We also give each costing an uncertainty rating, based on the data underpinning it, the complexity of the modelling involved and the possible behavioural impact of the policy.

These five roles all focus on the public finances at a UK-wide level. But the UK Government also asked us to forecast the receipts from those taxes and spending from social security that it has devolved – or intends to devolve – to the Scottish and Welsh governments.

Our Scottish and Welsh revenue forecasts are published alongside our EFOs and Welsh Government Budgets.

We also publish independent forecasts for the devolved taxes alongside the Welsh Government's Budget.

In support of these activities, we undertake a variety of research projects through the year. We publish briefing material to inform people about our work, and we provide a same-day briefing on the monthly public finances statistics, to help people interpret the latest data in the light of our most recent forecasts.

Responsibilities of non-executive members

The non-executive members of the OBR play an important role in ensuring the good governance of the Office, safeguarding the independence of the OBR and ensuring that the executive members of the OBR are supported and constructively challenged.

The non-executive members have a number of responsibilities set out in the legislation establishing the OBR. These statutory duties are to:

- assess if the OBR has been able to perform its main duty with complete discretion and in line with its three principles (impartially, objectively and transparently), and report on this in the OBR's annual report;
- regularly review the processes the OBR has in place to ensure it produces a high standard of work; and
- periodically, and at least every five years, appoint independent, expert reviewers, to conduct a review to consider the quality of all the reports produced by the OBR in that period. The next review should report in 2030.

Other roles that the non-executive members perform include:

- Forming part of the Oversight Board: providing strong and independent leadership of the OBR as part of the Oversight Board, with collective responsibility for setting the strategic direction of the OBR and ensuring it is managed efficiently and effectively.
- Providing support and constructive challenge, and safeguarding independence: providing the highest quality judgement and advice on the full range of issues covered by the Oversight Board and playing a key role in safeguarding the independence of the OBR, through the capacity to advise and report from an external perspective. This may involve being available to appear before Parliamentary committees on these matters.
- Taking a lead role in advising on matters related to audit and risk: the Oversight Board must assure itself of the effectiveness of the internal control and risk management systems of the OBR. This Audit Committee function involves both non-executive members and is led by one non-executive member.
- Chairing internal meetings of the OBR: one non-executive member has responsibility for chairing Oversight Board meetings and the other has responsibility for chairing the Audit Committee. These are inward-facing roles that involve facilitating Board and Audit Committee meetings, formulating their strategies and setting their agendas.

Terms of appointment

Non-executive members' terms are for three years. With the agreement of the Chancellor, a non-executive member may serve a maximum of two terms.

These are part-time roles, with an anticipated time commitment of around six days per year. The Oversight Board and Audit Committee meetings take place three times a year, usually in January, June and September.

The positions will not be remunerated. Reasonable expenses will be paid.

The non-executive members are not required to hold UK nationality. UK residence is expected.

Any successful candidate will be expected to abide by the Seven Principles of Public Life, these are:

- 1 Selflessness
- 2 Integrity
- 3 Objectivity
- 4 Accountability
- 5 Openness
- 6 Honesty
- 7 Leadership

More information on the Seven Principles can be found here:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/the-7-principles-of-public-life/the-7-principles-of-public-life--2>

As part of the recruitment process, this will be reviewed in due diligence checks, including social media checks that will be undertaken on short-listed candidates.

How to apply and timetable

Applications should consist of the following:

A full CV, including education and professional qualifications, career history, and relevant achievements and responsibilities.

A covering letter of no more than two sides of A4 setting out:
